pecial Dispatch to The Bee. New York, December 9-4 p. m .-The commissioners of charities have just rescued three immigrant girls from Magdalena Blames. They are natives of Paris, from 19 to 23 years of age, named Xayler Willern, a resident of city, and who offered them easy work and large wages, besides offering to pay their fare to this country. They were passengers on the "Pierre" and after their arrival were taken to a French hotel on Wooster street. During the voyage, Willem dropped some hints which were refused by the girls. who were suspicious of his intentions regarding them. At the boarding house their suspicions were confirmed. Inquiry to the St. Louis police pronounced the Willems hotel story a hoax, and the girls visited Castle Garden and made complaint against Will-em, stating that he had all their clothing locked up in his trunks and refused to give it up. A detective went to the Wooster street house and recovered the clething, but not until he had been compelled to knock Willem down. A situation has now been found in New York for all three of ing it almost certain that nothing of value would be left inside, and that the whole building would be gutted. The fire appears to have started under the stage, and is doubtless owing to the to some imperfection of the furnace, or possibly from carelessness. The smoke was probably caused by the scenery being permeated with so much oil. Not the least sign of a name was to be seen anywhere, nothing but heavy volumes of smoke issuing from every window and door. At one o'clock the firemen upon the inside were forced to vacate and seek the open air, pulling their hose after them. At this hour, 1,30 p. m., the fire is still raging, and it looks as though the building of the Globe-Democrat, on one side of the Comique, and the American Union telegraph building situated on the other side,
